

Good Tips

To Celebrate Earth Day, Arbor Day & Every Day

From your child's first A+ paper to a care package that brings Grandma's homemade cookies right to your door—paper and packaging products are integral to happy, connected lives. And they help us make important contributions to a more sustainable future. When we recycle paper and packaging products, we're building a better life cycle for our families. Check out these tips—and post them on the fridge—to recycle smarter for Earth Day, Arbor Day, and every day.

Wondering how to recycle? Check with your local recycling program or visit Earth911.com.

These Go in the Bin

Place the shipping boxes that arrive at your door, everyday dry food boxes, shoeboxes, laundry detergent boxes, white and colored paper, office folders, notebooks, stationery, paper mail and envelopes, postcards, paper bags, and magazines (like this one!) in the bin. Whew!

Recycle, Don't Wish-Cycle

When well-intentioned recyclers toss a questionable item in the bin, it can unfortunately lead to recycling problems. Instead of wishing that something could be recycled, stay up on current local guidelines or check Earth911.com for guidance.

Recycling "Do's"

Remember to recycle the cardboard tubes inside toilet paper, paper towels, wrapping paper, and paper egg cartons. Milk, juice, and other beverage cartons are also recycling "do's." Just be sure to rinse. Not sure if it's a do or don't? Check local guidelines or visit Earth911.com.

Yes or No?

What about last night's pizza box? Or that takeout coffee cup or takeout food package you used on-the-go? That's dependent on where you live. Check your local guidelines before attempting to recycle. With a quick check, you can help support a healthier planet.
